

Tamil Guardian

Tamil Guardian is the long-running diaspora news outlet of record on Sri Lanka, the North-East, and Tamil communities globally. Its archives — operating continuously since the immediate post-war period — are a cited primary source across multiple OHCHR and OISL footnotes.

Tamil Guardian is included in the case file as a diaspora-journalism infrastructure entry, not as a TLTE source. The case file cites Tamil Guardian where its reporting is itself cited by Tier-A institutions, and routes readers to it for ongoing reporting that academic and UN cycles do not cover at frequency.

§1 Structural role

Tamil Guardian provides continuous coverage of North-East developments — memorialisation, militarisation, land, judicial decisions, electoral politics — that mainstream international press do not cover at frequency. Its archive operates as a public-record layer between Tier-A institutional cycles.
